2010 Playoffs:

Entering the playoffs as the higher seed in their respective aggregate goals series, Rochester, Portland, Austin and Carolina all failed to score a goal during the first leg of play. Since 2000, teams that have won the first leg by two goals are 14-0-3 all time since. While clubs leading by two goals have lost six second-leg matches out of 17 series' all-time, only three have seen the series turn in favor of the host club of the second leg. In 2008, the Rhinos led Puerto Rico, 2-0, after the first leg before losing to the Islanders on the road 3-2 on aggregate.

Rochester has an all-time mark of 28-18-8 in postseason play having qualified for the league's "second season" in all fifteen years of existence. This is the third straight year the Rhinos and Islanders have met in the playoffs with Rochester posting a 2-3 record in five matches all-time.
